■ OAKLAND — 3 per. Mov. Avg. (OAKLAND)

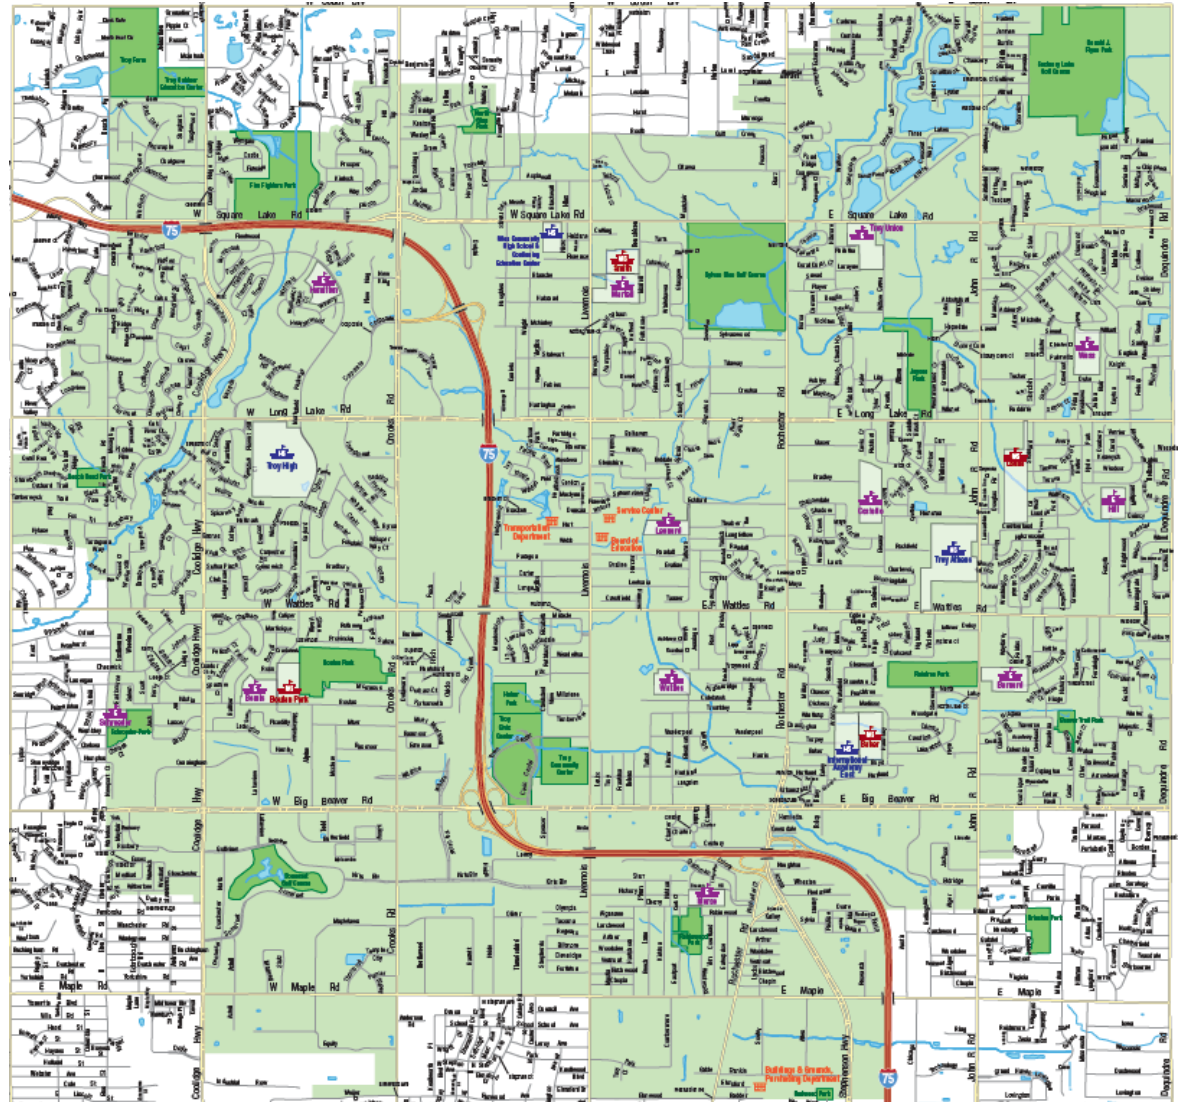

The line graph illustrates the historical trend of the foreign-born population in the United States. The y-axis represents the number of residents in increments of 50,000, ranging from 0 to 250,000. The x-axis shows years from 1900 to 2016 in four-year intervals. The population begins at roughly 40,000 in 1900, shows a steady increase until the mid-1940s, reaches a major peak of over 200,000 in 1956, and then experiences a long-term decline with some fluctuations, ending at approximately 110,000 in 2016.
